

I began attending services regularly at St. John's Episcopal Church in May 2018. I sing in the choir, participate in adult Christian education, and store empty garbage and recycling cans for future use. A retiree from the Texas government, I spent decades as an adjunct instructor with Park University. I have degrees from Centre College and the University of Texas at Austin. I consider my marriage to Sandy Welles for more than 40 years to be my proudest achievement. We have two adult daughters.
