

Who We Are

Through a combination of research and education, the HBEC reaches often overlooked residents of the urban landscape to improve their health and aging. Located at the Institute of Gerontology at Wayne State, the HBEC is part of the Michigan Center for Urban African American Aging Research (MCUAAAR) and is funded by the National Institute on Aging.

How You Can Help

A core goal of the HBEC is to encourage older African American adults to consider participating in approved research projects. In the past, researchers have been hampered by difficulties recruiting older African Americans to be involved in research projects. Research is critical to understanding why African Americans are at much higher risk of developing certain diseases and why these diseases have a greater impact on their health and longevity.

The HBEC has worked to correct this problem by creating a Participant Resource Pool or PRP. If you agree to be part of the PRP, the Center guarantees that:

- All research projects meet the highest quality Federal State and University standards
- Your information will be handled with the strictest confidence
- You will be considered for research that is of interest to you
- You have the right to decline a research project for any reason at any time
