When Hugo was six, his father was murdered. The trauma left him unable to attend school, read or write. He was severely bullied because of his stutter and became afraid to speak.

Then he began coming to Agua Viva Kids every day. Here, he received nutritious meals, helping him to focus and have a safe space to learn.

He learned to read by studying the Bible.

Today, Hugo is back in school and can read, write and speak confidently. He wanted us to know he dreams of becoming a heart surgeon so he can help others.

Hugo has found his voice.

This is why we do what we do, because one meal can open the door to a new future.
