Media Alert: ASALH Brings Its 111th Annual Conference to Norfolk, Virginia

Celebrating 100 Years of Black History Commemorations

September 23–27, 2026

What: ASALH 111th Annual Conference

Where: Norfolk Waterside Marriott
Norfolk, Virginia (Hampton Roads)

When: September 23–27, 2026

Why: To commemorate 100 Years of Black History Commemorations and celebrate the enduring legacy of Dr. Carter G. Woodson's vision while advancing scholarship, public history, and community engagement for future generations.

Who: The conference will feature nationally recognized scholars, authors, public intellectuals, and cultural leaders whose work continues to expand our understanding of African American history and the global Black experience. Programming will also highlight the next generation of scholars while commemorating a century of ASALH's leadership in shaping how Black history is researched, taught, and celebrated.

For media credentials, interview requests, and registration information, please contact ASALH or visit the conference registration page. Registration for in-person attendance is open to all at the following address: https://asalh.org/conference.
