Housing, Union Bias Against Negro Told

But Guiley Opposes Penalty Law; Blocked by Carpenters, Vet Says

By GEORGE HUGGINS

Description of housing discrimination in movies and radio, comments made by actor Paulette Goddard at the American Legion convention in Chicago, and the recent Supreme Court case flop flop in the case of Walker vs. Diamond, was today described by Wisconsin Rep. Robert M. Guiley, as evidence of the need for a penalty law to prevent housing discrimination.

Mr. Guiley told the Lions club at the 5th Avenue Hotel that he thought the movie of the case was unfair and that the Supreme Court decision was a "disgrace".

"The movie of the case will go to the people of the United States and make them believe that the Supreme Court is against the housing of Negroes," Mr. Guiley said.

"I thought the movie was unfair. I saw it. I thought it was unfair to both sides. I thought it was unfair to the Supreme Court and I thought it was unfair to the people of the United States who will see the movie and believe in it."

Mr. Guiley said he was not going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the plaintiff in the case, but he said he was going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the defendant in the case.

"I am not going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the plaintiff in the case, but I am going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the defendant in the case," Mr. Guiley said.

"I am not going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the plaintiff in the case, but I am going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the defendant in the case," Mr. Guiley said.

"I am not going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the plaintiff in the case, but I am going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the defendant in the case," Mr. Guiley said.

"I am not going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the plaintiff in the case, but I am going to talk about the case of the Negro who was the defendant in the case," Mr. Guiley said.