New Survey Set on Negro Skills

A broadened survey of the skills needed by the Negro community in Madison is now being planned by John D. McGrath, chairman of the Commission for the Advancement of Colored People, and E. R. Rice, Milwaukee county home economist; State Industrial Commission.

The survey will check Negroes in every occupational group and will extend its work beyond the city limits of Madison. McGrath said that the survey would be completed by the end of the year.

UW Housing Bias Film Attracts 600

The American Civil Liberties Union has released a film that examines housing discrimination in the UW community. The film, titled "Housing Bias," has been showing at the Union Theater in Madison for the past two weeks.

The film has been shown to over 600 people so far, and it has sparked a great deal of discussion among students and faculty. Some have praised the film for its frankness, while others have criticized its bias.

The film presents a series of vignettes that illustrate the various forms of housing discrimination that are common in the UW community. It also features interviews with students and faculty who have experienced discrimination.

Local reactions to the film have been mixed. Some students have expressed appreciation for the film's frankness, while others have criticized its bias.

The film is available for loan from the UW library. It is recommended for anyone interested in learning more about housing discrimination in the UW community.
