Private guard field is booming

More roles plus more professionalism

By Scott Mithchell

His been closed and relocated, out in the far from a busy lot he...

"You never know what might happen," says Jim Mankowski, a private security guard in Madison for 10 years.

Mankowski, who owns his own security company, JBM Patrol & Protection, once-dreamed of being cop chasing another man with an ally guns. But in reality, they have...
Tutors

Wisconsin State Journal, Sunday, September 13, 1998

TO VOLUNTEER FOR TUTORING

The tutoring program, which is based upon research and models that make a real difference in a kid's education, is for students who face tough futures. It's being financed by the state through the United Way of Dane County, which has provided an additional $87,000 for the coming school year. The school district is providing an additional $87,000 in in-kind contributions each year.

The tutoring program grew out upon research and models that make a real difference in a kid's education, is for students who face tough futures. It's being financed by the state through the United Way of Dane County, which has provided an additional $87,000 for the coming school year. The school district is providing an additional $87,000 in in-kind contributions each year.

Mankowski has been with the Madison School District since 1978. He was appointed to the position of director of security in 1983 and became the school district's security officer in 1984. Mankowski has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990.

Mankowski says he has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990. He was suspended from his job as security officer in 1994, and he was fired in 1995.

During his tenure, Mankowski has faced numerous allegations of misconduct, including suspicion of sexual misconduct by a student and the theft of a student's laptop computer.

Mankowski has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990. He was suspended from his job as security officer in 1994, and he was fired in 1995.

On July 30, 1995, the state Department of Public Instruction suspended Mankowski without pay for 60 days. The suspension was later reduced to 30 days after Mankowski agreed to take a six-month leave from his job.

On September 26, 1995, the state Department of Public Instruction filed charges against Mankowski, alleging that he had violated the state's security guard laws.

Mankowski was found guilty of the charges and was ordered to pay a fine of $1,000. He was also ordered to take a six-month leave from his job.

Mankowski has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990. He was suspended from his job as security officer in 1994, and he was fired in 1995.

Mankowski has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990. He was suspended from his job as security officer in 1994, and he was fired in 1995.

Mankowski has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990. He was suspended from his job as security officer in 1994, and he was fired in 1995.

Mankowski has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990. He was suspended from his job as security officer in 1994, and he was fired in 1995.

Mankowski has been the subject of several investigations by the state education department since 1990. He was suspended from his job as security officer in 1994, and he was fired in 1995.