By David Stoeflcr

School plan brings concern on burdens for minorities

A key point of contention in judging the plan: the Madison School District's designation plan is in the beginning stages and could be changed by board-pairing.

The civil rights commission found that any plan would have to include the burden of minorities, which minority students are involved in the school pairings.

The civil rights commission was that any plan would involve the Madison School District's elementary schools.

In 1983-84 school year, including 262 minorities, or 26.7 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving. About 39 students involved in the school pairings.

Changes. Of those, 96 students, or 32.6 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving.

Of the 437 students involved in the school pairings who will be able to walk to their new schools. 10 percent of the total number and 8 percent of all area minority students will be changing schools in fall 1985.

An estimated 350 students will be involved in the 31 schools that will be involved in the school pairings, including 350 students, including 34 percent of all students.

A school-school board looks at the elementary schools.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

Burden of change: Based on current estimates, 350 students will be involved in the school pairings.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

By David Stoeflcr

School plan brings concern on burdens for minorities

A key point of contention in judging the plan: the Madison School District's designation plan is in the beginning stages and could be changed by board-pairing.

The civil rights commission found that any plan would have to include the burden of minorities, which minority students are involved in the school pairings.

The civil rights commission was that any plan would involve the Madison School District's elementary schools.

In 1983-84 school year, including 262 minorities, or 26.7 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving. About 39 students involved in the school pairings.

Changes. Of those, 96 students, or 32.6 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving.

Of the 437 students involved in the school pairings who will be able to walk to their new schools. 10 percent of the total number and 8 percent of all area minority students will be changing schools in fall 1985.

An estimated 350 students will be involved in the 31 schools that will be involved in the school pairings, including 350 students, including 34 percent of all students.

A school-school board looks at the elementary schools.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

Burden of change: Based on current estimates, 350 students will be involved in the school pairings.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

By David Stoeflcr

School plan brings concern on burdens for minorities

A key point of contention in judging the plan: the Madison School District's designation plan is in the beginning stages and could be changed by board-pairing.

The civil rights commission found that any plan would have to include the burden of minorities, which minority students are involved in the school pairings.

The civil rights commission was that any plan would involve the Madison School District's elementary schools.

In 1983-84 school year, including 262 minorities, or 26.7 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving. About 39 students involved in the school pairings.

Changes. Of those, 96 students, or 32.6 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving.

Of the 437 students involved in the school pairings who will be able to walk to their new schools. 10 percent of the total number and 8 percent of all area minority students will be changing schools in fall 1985.

An estimated 350 students will be involved in the 31 schools that will be involved in the school pairings, including 350 students, including 34 percent of all students.

A school-school board looks at the elementary schools.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

Burden of change: Based on current estimates, 350 students will be involved in the school pairings.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

By David Stoeflcr

School plan brings concern on burdens for minorities

A key point of contention in judging the plan: the Madison School District's designation plan is in the beginning stages and could be changed by board-pairing.

The civil rights commission found that any plan would have to include the burden of minorities, which minority students are involved in the school pairings.

The civil rights commission was that any plan would involve the Madison School District's elementary schools.

In 1983-84 school year, including 262 minorities, or 26.7 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving. About 39 students involved in the school pairings.

Changes. Of those, 96 students, or 32.6 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving.

Of the 437 students involved in the school pairings who will be able to walk to their new schools. 10 percent of the total number and 8 percent of all area minority students will be changing schools in fall 1985.

An estimated 350 students will be involved in the 31 schools that will be involved in the school pairings, including 350 students, including 34 percent of all students.

A school-school board looks at the elementary schools.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

Burden of change: Based on current estimates, 350 students will be involved in the school pairings.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

By David Stoeflcr

School plan brings concern on burdens for minorities

A key point of contention in judging the plan: the Madison School District's designation plan is in the beginning stages and could be changed by board-pairing.

The civil rights commission found that any plan would have to include the burden of minorities, which minority students are involved in the school pairings.

The civil rights commission was that any plan would involve the Madison School District's elementary schools.

In 1983-84 school year, including 262 minorities, or 26.7 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving. About 39 students involved in the school pairings.

Changes. Of those, 96 students, or 32.6 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving.

Of the 437 students involved in the school pairings who will be able to walk to their new schools. 10 percent of the total number and 8 percent of all area minority students will be changing schools in fall 1985.

An estimated 350 students will be involved in the 31 schools that will be involved in the school pairings, including 350 students, including 34 percent of all students.

A school-school board looks at the elementary schools.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

Burden of change: Based on current estimates, 350 students will be involved in the school pairings.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

By David Stoeflcr

School plan brings concern on burdens for minorities

A key point of contention in judging the plan: the Madison School District's designation plan is in the beginning stages and could be changed by board-pairing.

The civil rights commission found that any plan would have to include the burden of minorities, which minority students are involved in the school pairings.

The civil rights commission was that any plan would involve the Madison School District's elementary schools.

In 1983-84 school year, including 262 minorities, or 26.7 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving. About 39 students involved in the school pairings.

Changes. Of those, 96 students, or 32.6 percent of those moving. About 185 Lincoln school minorities and 8.7 percent of those moving.

Of the 437 students involved in the school pairings who will be able to walk to their new schools. 10 percent of the total number and 8 percent of all area minority students will be changing schools in fall 1985.

An estimated 350 students will be involved in the 31 schools that will be involved in the school pairings, including 350 students, including 34 percent of all students.

A school-school board looks at the elementary schools.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

The 43 minority students involved represent 43 percent of the total number of students.

Burden of change: Based on current estimates, 350 students will be involved in the school pairings.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.

Some 48 students represent 20 percent of the total number of students.