The Gratitude Project

We are grateful that after more than two years of the COVID pandemic, our Emanuel family perseveres and is poised to thrive for future generations. We face many challenges, global and local. Our beautiful tradition equips us to meet these challenges with moral courage, spiritual sensitivity, and communal solidarity.

Rabbi David Small

As we emerge from two plus years of challenges caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, it is appropriate that we pause and reflect upon how much we must be grateful for as individuals, as the Emanuel family and our larger community.

As individuals, we have survived many challenges and made new connections in our communities that have helped to sustain us during this difficult period. Sadly, we may have also suffered illnesses and lost family members and friends because of the virus. We are grateful for our good health, as well as the enduring and blessed memories of the departed.

As the Emanuel family, we quickly adapted to an ever-changing landscape, successfully balancing health and safety with our objective of maintaining an open, warm, and welcoming synagogue even when we were physically apart.
