Help Protect Your Property This Fall: Stay Ahead of Seasonal Risks

Did you know that sprinkling cedar shavings, sawdust, or mulch can help deter rodents from nesting in your equipment and vehicles? When temperatures drop, rodents seek warm and sheltered locations to build nests. These unwelcome guests can destroy walls and furnishings, and even spark fires by chewing through the wiring of vehicles stored inside or near buildings.

A proactive maintenance plan is essential to ensuring your business is ready for the colder months. To keep you ahead of potential risks this fall, we've developed risk management resources on how to help prevent costly property damage and business interruptions, before they become major problems:

Fall property maintenance: Roof inspection time

Key tips to help protect your business against rodents
