Here to help you before, during and after the award.

BBCetc helps you secure SBIR/STTR funding. But we can also help you during the process to help you get through each agency's unique and often-changing requirements, and after the award to make sure you move forward effectively.

Pre-submission
BBCetc can help you determine if SBIR/STTR funding is a good fit for your technology. This can save you enormous amounts of time and energy, especially if it turns out it isn't the proper funding source.

That leads to figuring out if there are other non-dilutive funding opportunities that might be more appropriate for your technology.

We can also help you develop a strategy for your project to give you the best chance of securing funding; understand what is required in a funding announcement; learn the best techniques to make your application most attractive; preparing for iterative reviews; preparing electronic submission; and finally submitting the proposal.

After the submission
After you've submitted your application, you'll still have a few gauntlets to overcome. We can help you prepare for your administrative review (you will have already gone through a technology review); understand the score you receive; and prepare a resubmission for a second attempt if you weren't successful the first time (and don't feel alone; it happens to a lot of new companies).

Post-award
BBCetc can help you determine the best way to manage your new funding; how to be compliant with governmental guidelines; assisting with making major changes such as PI or fundamental institutional changes; and assistance with project reporting. We can even help you pursue Technical and Business Assistance (TABA) supplemental funding.
