ABOUT OUR FEATURED SPEAKER:

Lawrence Biemiller retired as a senior writer at The Chronicle of Higher Education in February 2020 to help reopen the East Broad Top Railroad. He is a board member and corporate secretary of the new EBT Foundation, Inc., and is also on the board of the railroad’s longtime volunteer group, the Friends of the EBT (without which, he says, there might not have been anything left of the EBT for a new foundation to acquire). He has helped write numerous grant applications, has given hundreds of tours of the railroad’s roundhouse and shops complex, and capped off last year by making more than 3,000 servings of hot chocolate for the railroad’s Christmas event. After living in Washington, D.C., for 39 years, he’s now a resident of Cromwell Township, where he enjoys never having to worry about parking.
