

Rachel Lytle

Secretary

A Southern Maryland native, Rachel grew up in Leonardtown and received her degree from Penn State University, where she studied journalism. Rachel has worked in marketing and communications for various industries throughout the past decade, including health care, government contracting, small business, and more. In addition to full-time employment, Rachel has a passion for magazines and stays connected to the community as the editor for the region's only women's lifestyle magazine, Southern Maryland Woman. On a personal level, Rachel cares deeply about mental health advocacy and enjoys traveling as well as playing tennis through the local USTA leagues.
