

Bio of Peter S. Brodsky

Peter S. Brodsky is an investor and business executive who, through a majority-owned company, owns the Reimagine RedBird development (formerly known as Southwest Center Mall and, prior to that, Red Bird Mall). He is investing in the mall and its surrounding land to restore it to a place of pride and quality in the community.

Prior to acquiring the mall, Peter was a founder and partner of HBC Investments LLC, a firm focused on investing both third party capital and the capital of its principals in growth-oriented companies. Prior to co-founding HBC, Peter was a partner at the private equity firm of HM Capital Partners and its predecessor, Hicks Muse, where he was employed for over 15 years. At HM Capital, Peter focused on the media industry and was responsible for deploying or managing over $2.6 billion of equity investments and completed over 100 transactions.

In the civic and non-profit arenas, Peter serves on several boards. He serves as Chairman of the City of Dallas's Animal Advisory Commission, which advises Dallas Animal Services, the city animal shelter and control service provider. On the Commission, Peter's focus is addressing the stray and loose dog crisis in southern Dallas. Peter also serves on the Boards of: KIPP Texas, a network of 55 schools with 29,000 preK-12 students in Austin, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio, as well as the Advisory Board of KIPP Texas - Dallas-Fort Worth, a network of seven schools serving over 3,000 students in grades K-10 in southern Dallas, which he chaired from January 2011 through June 2017. Formerly, Peter served on the following Boards: North Texas Public Broadcasting, the owner and operator of Dallas-Fort Worth's PBS and NPR affiliates; AT&T Performing Arts Center; Vogel Alcove; and Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

Peter received a BA in Russian Literature from Yale College. He lives in Dallas, TX with his wife Lael and their three children.

Contact Info:

Peter S. Brodsky
3662 W. Camp Wisdom Road, Suite 1084
Dallas, TX 75237
972-338-3624 (w)
pbrodsky@redbird-dallas.com