The Texas A&M University System Office of Facilities Planning & Construction (FP&C), on behalf of the Board of Regents of The Texas A&M University System (Owner) and Texas A&M AgriLife Research, is soliciting statements of qualifications for selection of an Architect/Engineer (A/E) firm for the Animal Reproductive Biotechnology Center project (#06-3397) located on the RELLIS Campus in Bryan, Texas.

The new Animal Reproductive Biotechnology Center will be approximately 7,500 assignable square feet (asf) which translates to approximately 12,600 gross square feet (GSF). In addition to the built facility, the Center will include approximately 11,500 square feet (SF) of exterior covered space. The new Animal Reproductive Biotechnology Center will further the Department of Animal Science's pursuit of innovation and collaboration through academic and industry-partnered research. Focusing on the latest techniques and hands-on instruction, the new Center will support the Department's vision to become a touchstone for the future of animal reproductive science.
