The Texas A&M University System (A&M System) is soliciting proposals on behalf of Texas A&M University for a company (also referred to as “Provider” or “Respondent”) to provide beverage and food services at the ENMED building in Houston, Texas.

Located in the heart of the Texas Medical Center complex in Houston Texas, the Texas A&M University School of Engineering Medicine, (ENMED) is a 200K square foot, 9 story building located at 1020 Holcombe Blvd, Houston, TX 77030. The facility currently houses the cutting-edge hybrid engineering medicine program owned and operated by Texas A&M. Approximately 20% of the building is currently occupied by the ENMED program with the remaining space to be filled with Texas A&M affiliates and other outside technology companies, over time. Current occupancy, including students, faculty, and other occupants is approximately 200 with an anticipated occupancy within 3 years of approximately 500.
