

Preparing the WorkPlace for Social Distancing

How will your office be impacted?

As the stay-at-home restrictions slowly are lifted, our physical workplaces will begin to re-open. How is this return back to the office going to impact your company and employees? How can you prepare your workplace for the upcoming changes?

Today's Systems is here to assist in planning and redesigning your workplace environment around social distancing. We have developed some ideas to demonstrate possible solutions to implement in your workplace using your existing furniture conditions.

We hope these ideas provide inspiration for your workplace. We look forward to speaking with you to see how we can implement some of these ideas into your own office.

The above office design concept from Cushman and Wakefield demonstrates their interpretation of the "Six-Foot Office" concept. This floor plan designates six foot carpet circles as employees' individual safe work zones.
