

Job Hunting: Step 2

How to Find a Job?

By: Raquel Castaneda

Last month, we looked at the first step in job-hunting, which was building your resume. Since then you should be in the process of creating your resume or have completed your resume. Either way, it is time to move toward the second step, finding a job.

For most, finding a job can sometimes be difficult and scary, but it is especially difficult for someone with a disability. Some difficulties in finding a job can come from employers who may have assumptions about people with disabilities or may not know a lot about disabilities. It can also come from you if you are struggling with your self-confidence and self-esteem. We will look at how we can work through these difficulties and work with others in finding a job.

Most people get their first jobs through their parents, friends, neighborhood businesses, or someone else they know. This should not be any different for you. Your family, neighbors, and friends either all have jobs or know people who have jobs. This is a great place to start!

There are several ways to find a job. In this month's webinar, "Job Hunting: Step 2 - How to Find a Job?" you will learn different tips and pointers to help you along the way.
