COMMUNITY WATER LEADERS NETWORK PRESENTS:

Representation on Water Boards Roundtable

Local water boards, and small cities, are responsible for implementing the Human Right to Water in many rural communities. In order for water boards to be strong, inclusive and diverse representation and community engagement matters.

Dr. Mindy Romero, Director of the Civic Engagement Project at the UC Davis Center for Regional Change, will be sharing results of a report she authored exploring the representation of Latinxs and women in water board elections. The Community Water Center will be sharing results of research regarding uncontested water board seats in the southern San Joaquin Valley. Afterwards a small panel of water board directors will share about their perspectives on the topics of inclusion, representation, and importance of community participation in water board elections.
