

Online Training

Mental Health and Targeted Violence 101 Preventing School Shootings and Other Mass Casualty Events

DATE & TIME

Wednesday, November 12, 2025
1:00-3:00pm Eastern

LOCATION

American Psychological Association's Continuing Education Learning Platform:
Click HERE to Register

DESCRIPTION

This program will increase awareness and understanding of targeted violence in North America. Content includes definitions, trends, and case examples to enhance the capacity of professionals to understand risk and protective factors, recognize behavioral warning signs, and identify available resources. It will include a review of relevant professional standards, ethics, and laws relevant to decision-making in challenging cases. Resources and opportunities for further training will be shared so participants will know what is available and how to provide better resources and interventions for potential cases of targeted violence. The program is intended for mental health practitioners working in a variety of settings to increase competence and confidence in targeted violence-focused prevention and intervention efforts.

Learning Objectives

1. Describe targeted violence trends in North America.
2. Apply the biopsychosocial model to understanding risk for targeted violence.
3. Identify acute, behavioral indicators of targeted violence risk.
4. Demonstrate effective use of basic threat assessment in clinical practice.

Approved by the APA's Office of Continuing Education in Psychology

This program has been reviewed and approved by the American Psychological Association's (APA) Office Continuing Education in Psychology (CEP) to offer Continuing Education (CE) credit for psychologists. Full attendance is required to claim CE credit.

Partial credit is not awarded. The APA CEP Office maintains responsibility for the content of the program.

Deadline to Register: 11/1/2025

*For questions about the training, please email
nsaul@eradicatehatesummit.org*