Licensed Master Social Worker
Educator and an expert of the True Crime Community (TCC)
and Nihilistic Violent Extremism (NVE)
through Seeking Safer Pathways

ABOUT

Allizandra Herberhold, LMSW works directly with radicalized, violent and at-risk youth and young adults across the United States and Canada. She works directly with those charged with terrorist offenses relating to planning targeted violence attacks by mentoring them off the Pathway to Violence. She has experience with deradicalization and disengagement across ideologies, helping more than 40 people disengage from violent extremism.

She is an educator and an expert of the True Crime Community (TCC) and Nihilistic Violent Extremism (NVE) through her organization Seeking Safer Pathways. Utilizing her independent data, she created the “TCC Stoplight Model”, which has been used alongside current BTAM models. Allizandra has presented her research and findings to law enforcement agencies, schools, trust and safety teams, and government agencies. She provides education and training regarding the True Crime Community (TCC) based on her independent research for over 3 years covertly monitoring the communities across social media platforms. She is a sitting member of two BTAM teams in MA and NY. Allizandra has been interviewed for news outlets including Bloomberg, Slate, New York Times, World News Group, and The Dispatch
