Online Training: Officer, You Can No Longer Testify! The Implications of a Brady/Giglio Letter

Date: September 10, 2024 • Registration Fee: $150

Time: 11:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. Eastern Time

The U.S. Supreme Court in 1972 made it clear in the Giglio case that the prosecutor must disclose to the criminal defense any witness credibility issues. That extended to law enforcement officers since the 1990s. There still is confusion about which legal venues that applies and just what might be considered a valid credibility issue for officers. This webinar will address:

- Just how does this testimonial prohibition work?
- What is a valid credibility issue for a public safety officer?
- What role does the public safety agency have in this issue?
- Is there any appeal provision for an officer if s/he believes they have been wrongly issued a Brady/Giglio testimony prohibition letter?
- Can a Brady/Giglio letter be grounds for administrative discipline?

Instructor: Lou Reiter

Lou Reiter currently is a police consultant. He offers three (3) separate professional services to the law enforcement community. He provides training to police groups in the high liability areas of use of force, emergency vehicle operations, high risk operations, investigations of citizen complaints, Internal Affairs procedures, investigation of critical incidents, and liability management. He will normally conduct 15-20 of these programs ranging from 2 hours to 5 days in length. The primary seminars are a 2-1/2 day program on Internal Affairs and Police Discipline and a 5 day program on investigation of police use of force incidents.

Lou provides litigation consultation to attorney firms involved in police civil actions. Since 1983, Lou has been retained in over 1100 such cases in nearly every state plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. This has been on both sides of the table with approximately 60 percent being for plaintiffs.
