

Friends of Binkley Book Club

Feel overwhelmed by the number of “must read” books that you hear about? Do most book clubs ask too much of your busy life? If so, you might be interested in a non-fiction book discussion group that focuses on critical issues of our time, while emphasizing in-depth discussion over the volume of material covered. We will read a few chapters for each twice-monthly gathering, where we’ll share reflections and questions about the authors’ words, before moving on.

We will meet by Zoom at noon on Tuesdays beginning on Nov 16 and then on Nov. 30. and Dec. 14. We’ll decide dates around the holidays together.

We’re starting out with Reconstructing the Gospel: Finding Freedom from Slaveholder Religion by Jonathan Wilson-Hargrove and White Too Long by Robert Jones. Future readings, chosen together, may focus on climate issues, Indigenous people, immigration, economic realities, and more racial justice.

Launched by Charles and Diana Coble, Cate Alexander, and Sharlene Meisner, this book group is growing, and your participation is most welcome. Please address questions and/or your interest in participating to dianacoble@gmail.com.
