THEME

Acts 11:19-30

What does the story of mission going out from Jerusalem mean for churches in Ohio Conference? Perhaps, we, like the church in Jerusalem, can be anchors for mission. We have many years of walking together as congregations as well as many gifts and resources from God. Might we be called to anchor new church plants and missional communities? How can we share the best of our heritage and remain open to the renewal of the Holy Spirit?

SALLY SCHREINER YOUNGQUIST

Sally Schreiner Youngquist is a current community leader of Reba Place Fellowship, Evanston, IL, where she has been a covenant member since 1973. She has worked as a high school English teacher, a Mennonite Central Committee administrator, a conference planner, communications manager for the Seminary Consortium for Urban Pastoral Education (SCUPE), and a Mennonite pastor at Reba Place Church and Living Water Community Church. Besides nurturing community, she enjoys reading, walking, and being a grandparent.

STEVE NORTH

Rev. Steve North has been in ministry since 1977, but became a self-professed “weird church pastor” in 2006. That was when he walked away from his ministry life and moved to Toledo with his wife and three teenagers, without a job or a place to live, to try to plant a new ministry he wasn’t sure would work. Steve has been profoundly changed on the anvil of Toledo’s inner city as the Spirit has helped him to learn the way of immersion in the life of the city and humanity, of an embodied Gospel, of the Kingdom’s deeply embedded theology of table, and of the power of belonging. His degrees are not his qualification; only the anvil.
