Communicating Effectively When Wearing a Mask and in Virtual Environments

Please join us in the Georgian Room to hear an amazing lineup of speakers as they discuss Communicating Effectively When Wearing a Mask and in Virtual Environments.

Special guest speakers: (45 min presentation with Q&A)

Jeanne Hatcher, MD:

Dr. Hatcher joined Emory in 2014 after completing a fellowship in laryngology and care of the professional voice in San Antonio, Texas. Since arriving at Emory, she has been integral in offering cutting edge dysphagia evaluation and management as well as treating patients with complex upper airway disorders. She has been an invited speaker at several national meetings and has written multiple peer-review articles and book chapters.

Nathaniel Sundholm, CCC-SLP:

Originally from Brooklyn New York, has a Master of Science in Speech-Language Pathology with voice specialization from Vanderbilt University School of Medicine. He completed his clinical fellowship at the Emory Voice Center and has since remained a permanent member of the team. Clinical interests and growing expertise include singing voice rehabilitation, cough suppression, reactive airway therapy, dysphagia management, and community outreach/engagement. Nathaniel also has a rich performance background with experience in classical voice, Gospel, R&B, Musical Theatre, and CCM.
