

Call to Application: Young Medical Education Innovator Award

The Robert Wood Johnson Medical School's Institute for Excellence in Education is pleased to announce a call for application to the Young Medical Education Innovator Award to recognize outstanding junior faculty who have developed innovative approaches to advance medical education at our medical school.

The Young Innovator/Investigator Award will be administered through the Office of Education. Nominees must be full-time faculty at the level of instructor or assistant professor in either a basic science or clinical department of Robert Wood Johnson Medical School. Faculty may nominate themselves or be nominated by their peers, division chief or department chair.

A letter describing the candidate's innovation in medical education should be submitted to Carol A. Terregino, MD, senior associate dean for education and academic affairs, at terregca@rwjms.rutgers.edu, by April 1. The Selection Committee will be composed of members of the Institute for Excellence in Education.

Nominee Requirement

The nominee will submit a CV and a personal statement (1 page) describing the following:

- Educational career trajectory, goals and aspirations
- Evidence of educational innovation
- Specific description of how the award will be used to further innovation in medical education. Selection Criteria Nominees will be chosen based on the following criteria:
  - Evidence of/potential impact of innovation to the educational community at the local, regional or national levels.