This event offers a unique setting to hear opera gems sung by students from the University of Arizona Fred Fox School of Music.

The University's newly appointed opera director, Cynthia Stokes, has made an international reputation in taking opera offsite, away from the theatre. The unique and beautiful JCC Sculpture Garden's curved wall acts as a bandshell, and you will hear the jewels of the opera repertoire in near perfect acoustics. During the intermission, you will be able to walk the breathtaking Sculpture Garden, and meet the singers individually. Enjoy refreshments, and then further singing, highlighted by an aria auction to benefit the student singers.

Opera is at its best when it is visceral, and the coming together of this unique venue with the gifted singers of the University of Arizona will leave you thinking this is music you could hear for an eternity.
