

Job Talks - Final Candidates for the Role of Invasive Species Geneticist at the Assistant or Associate Professor rank

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Conservation at Virginia Tech invites you to attend the job talks of final candidates for the role of Invasive Species Geneticist. This is a 9-month, tenure-track, research (60%), teaching (30%), and service (10%) position at the Assistant or Associate Professor rank and is part of a campus-wide Invasive Species cluster hire.

Candidate: Cinnamon Mittan-Moreau

Job Talk: From introduced toads to imperiled butterflies: the genomics of evolution in small populations

Date: Monday, December 2

Time: 9:00 - 10:00 AM

Location: Fralin Auditorium

Candidate: David Rodriguez

Job Talk: Leveraging genetic tools to elucidate and address the impacts of invasive organisms on native wildlife

Date: Thursday, December 5

Time: 9:30 - 10:30 AM

Location: Steger Auditorium

Candidate: Robert Cooper

Job Talk: Leveraging genomic tools to meet the challenge of invasive species management

Date: Monday, December 9

Time: 9:00 - 10:00 AM

Location: Fralin Auditorium

COLLEGE OF NATURAL RESOURCES AND ENVIRONMENT
FISH AND WILDLIFE
CONSERVATION
VIRGINIA TECH.

Invasive Species
COLLABORATIVE AT VIRGINIA TECH