

The Department of Geosciences held Fossil Unwrapping Party on October 23rd. They had over 140 people attend the talk in Hahn and the community science event in our newly renovated Fossil Preparation Lab to curate Triassic fossils from Arizona! Photos include a group of VT Paleo grads and undergrads who were the floating experts for the evening, Michelle Stocker doing part of the intro talk, a welcome table in the prep lab, and a view of some community members unwrapping and making labels for fossils.
