As countries worldwide prepare to re-open their economies, international travel is poised to resume. However, in the absence of globally accepted vaccine regulations and passports, would-be travelers need to navigate a complex and rapidly changing patchwork of vaccine, testing and quarantine requirements, specific to each destination. At the same time, tourism industry players face the challenge of restarting in a vastly changed operational environment. Join the AmChams of the Asia Pacific (AAP) for a regional conference on the immediate issues facing international travel. Our three distinguished speakers include:

Adh T. Stevens
Second Secretary
and Consul
U.S. State Department

Vinoop Goel
Asia - Pacific Regional Director of Airports & External Relations
International Air Transport Association

Alfredo Montufar-Helu
Director
The Economist Intelligence
Corporate Network, Beijing

After the plenary presentations, participants will be invited to join destination-specific breakout sessions, where there will be the opportunity for networking and interactive discussion regarding 8 specific destinations. Each breakout session will be led by an AmCham Executive Director and a leading expert in the travel field. Our esteemed breakout discussion speakers include:
