Share Your Love Stories

Everyone has their unique love story to tell, whether that's a romantic tale or a more abstract connection with a special place. Sharing these stories can be profoundly meaningful and remind us of just how special life's moments can be.

My love story began 27 years ago when I was hired by Newport Hospitality. It has been an incredible journey ever since - one filled with ups and downs but ultimately so much to be proud of.

Through my work, I've had the privilege of helping others grow by offering them;

- educational opportunities;
- inspiring them to follow their passions;
- connecting them with our company vision;
- encouraging them to take risks to reach their full potential.

This experience of loving what we do is truly priceless - it's what makes life so worthwhile and beautiful. Whether you have already found your passion or are still searching for it, I encourage you to share your love story in all its unique forms!
