The Northeast Telehealth Resource Center is pleased to announce a self-paced training opportunity for community health workers, Telehealth Basics for Community Health Workers.

This self-paced training course is intended for community health workers and others who assist clients in the prevention, management, and self-management of chronic health conditions using technological tools and telehealth. This course complements CHW core competency training by providing individuals with added education, skill building, and access to resources.

Topics in this course include:

- What is Telehealth
- Telehealth Modalities
- Assessing Technology and Telehealth Readiness
- CHWs: Roles and Implications for Telehealth
- Community Health Worker Skills
- Technology and Telehealth Activities

Available with free registration at
