In one of the largest states in the country, how do you stand out as a business, a city, or an attraction? How do you market to potential customers that include tourists, visitors, and local consumers when all of these groups are attuned to blocking out marketing, ignoring traditional media, and your organization's marketing budget has just been cut?

In this all-day workshop Jon Schallert will be showing every participant those consumer "Hot Buttons" that naturally grab attention. He will focus on what he calls "Silver Bullet Marketing Solutions" that emphasize individual marketing tactics and processes that can yield big results for very little dollars, while also attracting media coverage from television, radio, newspapers, magazines, and internet sites.

Attendees will leave with a list of immediately implementable, action-oriented tactics, suggestions, and resources that they can put into place immediately upon returning to their attraction!

Lunch sponsored by the Uvalde Convention & Visitors Bureau!

Surround yourself with adventure.
