

Facilitator Callout

...and still we rise women in solidarity

In 2022, a new vision for ...and still we rise will be introduced to participants. This celebration of women's leadership, social justice and unionism will include a focus on anti-oppression and building leadership capacity within schools/communities, local/provincial union spaces and political arenas.

ETFO is currently looking for facilitators who are interested in presenting at ...and still we rise—Women in Solidarity. Facilitators will be expected to deliver two scripted workshops provided by ETFO. Additionally, facilitators are to develop and deliver a 75-minute workshop on one of the following themes: Union Leadership, School/Community Leadership or Political Leadership.

Application deadline: October 13, 2021

Potential facilitators must:

- self-identify as women;
- be available to deliver workshops on both days;
- have experience developing and facilitating equity workshops for adult learners;
- possess a passion for women's leadership, intersectional feminism and advancing social justice; and
- have experience working in their local and/or with ETFO's provincial office.

Interested ETFO members who meet the above criteria, must complete the facilitator application form. If you plan on co-facilitating, please note that only two facilitators are permitted per workshop.

Selected facilitators will be contacted by October 29, 2021. Due to the anticipated volume of interested facilitators, feedback will not be provided about declined applications.
