

Why does my Marketplace notice say I won't get a premium tax credit this year?

There are several possible reasons. But even if you're told you don't qualify for financial help, update your application for 2024, and if necessary take the actions below. You may find out that you do qualify for financial help.

Possible reasons you've been told you may not qualify for a premium tax credit next year:

- Updated income information from the IRS may show that you don't qualify for 2024.
- You may need to send us information or take other actions before you qualify for a 2024 premium tax credit. Your letter will provide instructions and deadline information.
- We may not have a record showing you filed a federal income tax return to reconcile a premium tax credit you used in 2022. If you don't file a tax return for years you use a premium tax credit, we can't continue to offer you one.
- When you filled out your 2023 Marketplace application, you may not have allowed the Marketplace to use your updated tax information automatically for future years.
