

Renee Marcus, AIA, is a registered architect, code enforcement official, certified interior designer, and LEED AP. She holds a BS in Architecture as well as a Master's in business from NYIT. Ms. Marcus currently serves on the Executive Board as Treasurer and the Committee for Women in Architecture for the AIA LI Chapter, is the Past President of the LI Chapter of the Construction Specification Institute and has served as an adjunct professor for SUNY Farmingdale within the Architecture and Construction Management program for the last 15 years. Ms.

Marcus presently holds the position as Superintendent of Buildings for the Village of Floral Park where she supervises the Building Department as well as the construction projects for the Village owned properties. Previously she had concentrated most of her career working within the public sector focusing on schools and the municipal market as a Studio Director and Assistant Vice President at H2M architects + engineers. Ms. Marcus also has experience on the design and project management side of the profession acting as an owner's representative for the global offices at Bloomberg LP and then later AIG Realty. Projects were comprised of corporate interior design, lease negotiations, radio and tv studio design and integration, and office relocations, which included all aspects of bidding and construction administration.