

Maureen is a recent member of Matthew Korn Architect, a boutique residential design firm. She began her academic career in 1992 with an A.A.S in Interior Design and followed with BSAT in Architecture from NYIT, Old Westbury in 1998. With so many years of experience Maureen has a vast knowledge of materials and building systems under her belt. She has designed and documented a variety of spaces from high end residential, retail, hospitality, and institutional buildings all along marrying architecture and interior design passionately. Currently she has become an Associate AIA member and is pursuing licensure. She believes in integrating and giving back to her community and became a committee member of the Women in Architecture and the Emerging Professionals AIA Long Island Chapter. She loves travel and photography as well as drawing and sketching in any medium.
