Enid Day at the Capitol will be held on Tuesday, March 8th at the John D. Groendyke Wildlife Building located at 1801 North Lincoln Boulevard in Oklahoma City. Legislators, state agency officials, and staff will be in attendance at the breakfast which will begin at 8:30 a.m.

Jason Turnbow, Enid Chamber Chairman of the Board, said "Each year, Enid Day at the Capitol proves to be a great opportunity to advocate for Enid and Northwest Oklahoma." He added, "As the needs and priorities of our communities are always evolving and may not look the same as our state's metro communities, it's important for our constituents to show up and take the opportunity for open dialog with our local and state leadership."

This will be the second year the event has been held at the John D. Groendyke Wildlife Building. "We appreciate having access to the facility," said Chamber President Jon Blankenship. "It provides more space for our meetings and Director J.D. Strong and his staff are so accommodating. We look forward to having a large Enid group at the event to discuss issues that impact Enid and our regional economy." Blankenship said Leadership Greater Enid Class XXXI will be attending as well.

"Enid Day at the Capital is a great opportunity for our community to meet with our legislators about our great city and express our concerns with them with items such as education, medical, agriculture and other things that effect our rural community" said Roxanne Pollard, Enid Chamber State Government Chairman. "It is also a time to hear from our legislators about what they see this session that concerns them and what their priorities are and how we can help to improve our city" she said.

Please plan to attend this important Enid and Northwest Oklahoma legislative event.
