

The right to equal access to information.

Persons with visual impairments or Deaf may need additional aids or services to ensure that they have access to the same information as anyone else. DIG has represented many members of the Deaf community to ensure that they receive information as basic as medical information at a hospital to make medical decisions, as well as persons who have visual impairments to have information in Braille, large print, or in an accessible electronic format so the information can be accessed with screen reading software.