Celebrating Our Own: Brave Women Who Broke Barriers

There's a great new book hitting the shelves that hits close to home for our church community.. Written by Minnesota author Ronald Eustice, Brave Women Who Broke Barriers shares the inspiring stories of twelve remarkable women who carved out successful careers during a time when agriculture and other industries were strictly male-dominated.

If you know Juanita Reed-Boniface, her feature in this book won't come as a surprise. A dedicated member of American National Cattle Women, Minnesota Cattle Women and MLBA Hall of Fame inductee, Juanita grew up as a fourth-generation cattle producer and went on to spend a lifetime advocating for ag education through 4-H, Agriculture in the Classroom, and volunteer leadership. Her story sits alongside several other trailblazing women in the beef and dairy sectors across the country.

Eustice says he wrote the book simply because he knew so many incredible women and wanted to make sure their accomplishments were recorded to encourage the next generation. It's a fantastic read for anyone passionate about our industry's heritage.

Brave Women Who Broke Barriers is highly illustrated and available on Amazon.com or directly from the author by phone at 612-202-1016 or email at reustice@gmail.com.
