

Disability Support Services Bridge Workshop: A smooth transition from high school to college

Ivy Tech Central Indiana Office of Disability Support Services invites high school students with disabilities to a workshop designed to help them successfully move into a higher education environment.

WHO: High school juniors and seniors with a diagnosed disability who plan to attend any college

WHAT: A workshop offering college prep in these areas:

- Collegiate disability support services- identify differences between high school and college, learn about student responsibilities, practice self-advocacy for adult learners and learn about Disability Support Services
- Admissions processes- learn about the ACCUPLACER assessment and other admissions steps, along with types of degree programs
- Career exploration- take a self-assessment and meet with career services professionals
- Campus resources- learn about student life, the Learning Resource Center, TRiO Student Support Services and supplemental instruction
- Academic skills- learn what is expected of college students in terms of independence, course requirements, work ethic, research and more
- Personal responsibility- learn best practices in time management, organization, stress management, communication and other skills
- Learning Styles- learn about the StrengthsQuest approach, which helps students identify, focus on and apply their strengths to a college setting
