

BMC CELEBRATES RECOVERY!

Grayken Center for Addiction Medicine

Telling Our Stories: A Discussion and Open Forum on Addiction and Recovery

Boston Medical Center is committed to an open and stigma-free culture for everyone affected by addiction. At BMC, employees may experience addiction in several ways: themselves, their families, their communities and/or their patients. This event is designed to be an open dialogue for everyone on our campus.

Moderated by David Henderson, MD, Chief of Psychiatry, speakers will include Kate Walsh, President & CEO; Michael Botticelli, Executive Director of the Grayken Center for Addiction Medicine; and Eilene Grayken. The event will also feature a panel made up of BMC staff members who will discuss their experiences with addiction either personally and/or professionally as well as a special video featuring BMC staff discussing their experiences with addiction. We'll also open it up to the audience to share their stories and ask questions.

Monday, September 25
Noon – 1 p.m.
Keefer Auditorium
Open to the BMC and BUSM community.
