San Antonio Missions

The San Antonio missions are one of the most important chapters in the formation of Texas and the expansion of the US and a must-see when visiting our city. Experience a world-class presentation of the nuanced stories where colonization, faith, resistance, and survival converge. These missions were not just religious outposts but engines of cultural upheaval, forged through an uneasy alliance between Spanish colonizers and the Indigenous communities whose lands and lives were forever altered. As you explore their austere yet enduring architecture, you'll witness how Native peoples displayed extraordinary resilience, built and sustained these sites that encapsulate centuries of Roman and Moorish architectural technology that the Spanish brought to this region. This experience is not simply about admiring historic structures; it's about confronting the layered legacies of power, faith, and human endurance that continue to shape San Antonio's identity today.

San Antonio ProTours

Michael Robinson is the owner/operator of ProTours and has vast experience as an educator, both in the classroom and for multi-national companies. He has lived and worked in Philadelphia, New York City, Zurich and Portland Oregon, but his family has deep roots in San Antonio, both Canary Islander and German heritage, which lay the foundation for a deep appreciation and respect for our city's historical and cultural significance.

In another life, Michael has performed stand-up with the likes of Kevin Hart and Joe DeRosa, television acting and music production. He also emcees large corporate and sporting events throughout Mexico and the US, including the TCS New York City Marathon. These skillsets are the foundation of the ultra-engaging, uplifting and historically accurate tours that leave guests with a lasting love for San Antonio and the hill country.
