

Larissa Taboryski

Larissa began her culinary career in 1980 as a caterer and cafe owner, a role that allowed her to explore her passion for cooking delicious healthy foods at a time of great change in the food industry. Eventually she segued into teaching as she saw firsthand the challenges people faced with cooking while juggling the demands of a fast paced life. Teaching led her to the high end appliance industry as the Culinary Director for the Purcell Murray Company, to teach people how to use and benefit from the increasingly sophisticated appliances that were coming to market. During her 20 years with the company she developed a popular series of educational programs and online videos. Larissa is now broadening the scope of her culinary educational programs through her (coming soon) Website and YouTube channel www.larissataboryski.com resources designed to provide valuable information for cooking with Convection and Convection Steam as well as general tips for effective appliance use.
