

Press Release for NexTech Business Interiors:

Southfield, Michigan - January 17, 2019

NexTech Professional Services launches its Business Interiors Division

NexTech Professional Services is proud to announce the launch of its new Business Interiors Division.

Originally established in 1994, NexTech Professional Services is a premier human resources and business services firm, serving a diverse client base throughout the United States. In 2014, NexTech identified significant growth opportunity in the Government Sector and entered the federal contracting business. Based on the strength of its proven business processes, financial strength, and successful track record, NexTech was quickly awarded several services contracts with the government. Exceptional delivery on these early contracts led to winning several contracts in the business interiors space – including office furniture and flooring contracts with the Department of Defense.

Recognizing the potential opportunity in the business interiors market, and having completed several furniture, accessories, and carpeting contracts with the government, NexTech launched the business interiors division in 2018. As is the case with NexTech's Professional Services division, the Business Interiors division focuses on results and value for its clients.

Jon Chang (Founder & CEO of NexTech Professional Services) has assembled a highly experienced team of business interiors experts, each with more than 20 years of industry experience including; design, construction and project management, commercial furniture and accessory sales as well as installation services. Additionally, NexTech has identified and secured authorized vendor status with the top office furniture, commercial flooring and ergonomics products manufacturers in the U.S. and Canada.

As Jon emphasizes, "We believe that we offer a better model for organizations seeking to enhance their business environments – by acting in the best interest of the client and delivering exceptional value that focuses on employee well-being, return on investment, and customer satisfaction."
