Subject Focus This Week:

Language Arts: This week we will be working on our proofreading and editing skills! We will also be looking at two Robert Frost poems, and discussing the similarities and the differences between “Armful” and “The Road Not Taken”

Math: We have now begun our last chapter of the quarter - Chapter 8. We will be looking more into how to solve more complex variable equations using our four operations, but also begin to involve fractions and decimals as well.

History: Next week, a shot in a theater rings loudly in the ears of every American. Just after the culmination of half a decade of work restoring peace and ushering new freedom for the United States, Lincoln and his legacy are prematurely cut down by an assassin’s bullet. The consequences for the North and South are explored, particularly the hardly constructive “Reconstruction” period.

Science: The next few weeks we will be exploring the animal kingdom. We begin by looking at invertebrates and vertebrates. Scholars will be taking notes on the animal kingdom to apply to their end of the year biome projects.

Latin: Over the next couple weeks, we will refine our understanding of the perfect verb forms and practice recognizing and translating the perfect and imperfect.
