Interfaith Conversations with the Dying and the Bereaved

Thursday, July 12, 2018

2:30 – 4:30 pm

St. Charles Hospital, Bend, OR. - Conference Room A
(main floor, across from hospital front doors)

As compassionate professionals or devoted family caregivers, we may at times be invited into conversations with patients or family members that addresses religious views on death and the afterlife. Meeting people "where they are" in terms of belief systems is a delicate art that requires patience, wisdom and skill. How do we offer compassionate listening and support for beliefs that may not resonate with our own? How can we honor the other person's reality fully and lovingly, without imposing our own views and biases?

What You Will Experience in this Workshop:

- Understand inter-spiritual, multicultural perceptions of death and grief.
- Practice interfaith pastoral conversations in role-play exercises
- Identify where patients/clients are located in various stages of faith development
- Address spiritual questions related to end-of-life and bereavement

RSVP:

- SCHS caregivers: Register in Elsevier after June 1st
- Non - SCHS caregivers: Contact Lisa Pena at ljpena@stcharleshealthcare.org or (541) 706-6700
