CONTEST DESCRIPTION

One story, eight words.

There have been many versions of the 6, 7, and 8-word story in the past. As early as 1906 a newspaper classified section called "Terse Tales of the Town," published an eight-word story that read, "For sale, a baby carriage, never been used."

It is said a 6-word story was penned after a ten-dollar bet Ernest Hemingway made at lunch with some other writers. Hemingway collected the winnings!

So harness your imagination and see if you can write a mystery in 8 words! Have fun and play along - it becomes addictive!
