Social Practice and Relationship Knowledge

Now enrolling!

A safe, supportive space to build social and communication skills, learn to make and keep friends, set boundaries, express needs, and manage anxiety in social situations.

How Does SPARK Work?

SPARK is a skills group based on the PEERS (Program for the Education and Enrichment of Relational Skills) curriculum. We provide education and activities in session to help members master communication skills such as starting and maintaining conversations, making new friends, and deepening relationships with others, and coping with interpersonal stressors. We combine this with teaching DBT (Dialectical Behavior Therapy) skills to help clients manage emotions that may arise during social situations. Between groups, clients are highly recommended to practice skills learned in group and are rewarded for doing so.
