MISSION STATEMENT

The Radcliffe Choral Society is a soprano-alto choral ensemble from Harvard University. The group performs a distinctive and varied repertoire embracing nine centuries of choral literature: sacred and secular, a capella and accompanied, concerted and choral-orchestral. Founded in 1899, the ensemble is proud to honor its history and legacy by celebrating excellence in women's choral music and the extraordinary community formed through its music-making.

The ensemble's international tours give student singers an opportunity to engage and learn from the first-rate, pathbreaking choral communities abroad. In particular, travelling to South Korea in 2023 provides singers with the opportunity to learn from the vibrant communities of Seoul and Jeju Island.

The Radcliffe Choral Society has never traveled to South Korea before and is excited to spread its love of choral music to another country abroad. This tour will allow us to enrich our ensemble's history as well as bring a new perspective on women's empowerment through music. And ultimately, we hope to connect with the people and places we visit, the alumnae who came before us, and each other.
